President Donald Trump
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear President Trump:

We write as a group of individuals who are religious leaders, educators and scholars, business professionals and human rights advocates representing thousands of citizens, faith communities, universities, schools, businesses, and non-governmental organizations. We stand in solidarity with the many religious and ethnic minorities around the world facing severe persecution for their deeply held religious beliefs or commitment to no belief. At a time when according to the Pew Research Center, 74% of the world lives in places with high or very high persecution, we urge you to demonstrate your sincere commitment to these individuals and faith communities with the following action:

Nominating in your first 100 days an Ambassador-at-Large for International Religious Freedom

People of all faiths – Christians, Muslims, Jews, and Hindus included – face persecution that at times manifests itself both as heavy-handed government restrictions that try to control people and violent social hostilities that undermine the rule of law. Just a few examples:

- Continuing genocide of Christians, Yazidis and others who are forced to the edge of extinction by the Islamic State
- Increasing anti-Semitism across Europe
- Blasphemy laws used as a tactic to silence and settle scores among people, such as Asia Bibi in Pakistan
- Tightening control over Tibetan Buddhists, over 100 of whom have self-immolated in protest
- Attacks and murder of secular bloggers in Bangladesh
- Rohingya Muslims in Myanmar being actively displaced and denied citizenship in their own country
- Nigerian families facing a Level 5 famine and Boko Haram, one of the world's most lethal terrorist organizations

By nominating an Ambassador-at-Large for International Religious Freedom in your first 100 days you can signal your commitment to people of faith and freedom of conscience, in a way that requires no new taxes and no new legislation while strengthening highly effective offices.

As the first nation to constitutionally guarantee religious freedom, the United States has a great history of standing for this "first freedom" around the world, a right closely tied to other human rights, economics, and security. Your swift action in this regard would extend American leadership in this most critical of issues at this most pressing of times.

Sincerely,

Dr. Randel Everett
President, 21st Century Wilberforce Initiative
